

She Said She'd Like to Fly
(Melody's Song)

Just beneath her sadness that place where hope and fear
Becomes a still life painting that's hidden by veneer
On her own once and again she said she'd like to fly
Too fast for third, too slow for fourth too clear to see the light

Chorus:

And the earth will turn
And the ink will dry
And sweetness in the shadows
Will get her by
Will get her by

Baby, go, but take good care you don't really want to fall
Perhaps you'll eventually find that light
That runaway port-o-call
I know the moment has to come
When you'll open another door
Will it be that elusive distant light?
Happiness on a distant shore

Chorus:

And the earth will turn, and the ink will dry
And comfort of the darkness
Will get her by
And the earth will turn, and that ink will dry
Some sweetness in the shadows
Will get her by
Will get her by
Will get her by
